

Current Comment

There recently came to my desk a booklet entitled "An Answer to the Nazi Menace." Published by District Grand Lodge No. 4, B'nai B'rith, San Francisco, it reproduces material which clearly indicates America's unfavorable reception of Hitler's persecution of the Jews in Germany.

Some weeks ago it was my pleasure to comment upon the vulgarity, short-sightedness, and extreme egotism of the Austro-German Hitler, and it is my aim here to reiterate the opinions set forth in this column at that time.

Chief among my laments was the destruction of several millions of dollars worth of books, the fruits of Jewish pens—a library representing to a marked degree all that was best of "German" culture. That unforgivable crime punctuated a reign of oppression which ruined the Jews of Germany. Tradesmen were boycotted and abused; professional men and scientists were dispossessed and in some instances driven from the country. A campaign to purify and elevate the country, Hitler said. And this in face of the fact that many—a very great many—of Germany's greatest musicians, literarians, scientists and medics are German Jews. It is difficult for a mere bystander to reconcile himself to Hitler's philosophy; what must it be to those unfortunate people who are immediately affected by the Nazi "reign of terror?"

To me it seems that Hitler is rapidly preparing his own down fall. Not only have the Jews in Germany been harshly dealt with; other residents of the country are coming in for their share of oppression. Freedom of the press is no more. The right to hold public meetings is jealously controlled by Hitler, and the right of free speech exists no longer. Those who do not see eye to eye with the chief Brown Shirt are not well treated. They, too, have been dispossessed, incarcerated, murdered. The people were much better off morally, physically and economically under the autocratic rule of the Kaiser.

The Nazi regime cannot last. Nothing founded on intolerance can last. It is only a question of time before the German people will rise and throw off the yoke of this most sanguinary monster of recent times.

International opinion, too, is mobilized on the side of the oppressed, and Hitler's attitude at the recent arms parley did nothing to strengthen friendship between his government and other world powers. The determination of the rest of the world to keep the German eagle's claws clipped yet a while caused Hitler to withdraw from the conference like a sulky boy. That same determination may yet be the means of choking him back into some semblance of humanity.

Constance May Gavin, who has for several years past sought to establish her claim for a daughter's share of the vast Flood estate, yesterday achieved success when a tentative agreement awarded her considerably more than a million dollars.

The Flood heirs, in offering this settlement, stoutly denied relationship, maintaining that their sole purpose was to halt the litigation which has kept them very much in the public eye of late years. The Flood family has never been successfully accused of excessive philanthropy, and so the Flood denial appears very much as a soothing ointment for a sorely wounded ego.

CAMPAIGN TO CLEAN UP 1933 PRUNE CROP

Sponsored by the United Prune Growers of California as part of its industry advertising campaign, special prune sales will be held during the next two months in more than 25,000 retail grocery stores located in every part of the United States according to announcement made today by Ray Randall, advertising manager of the statewide prune growers' cooperative.

These sales will include practically all of the chain grocery organizations, large groups of independent retailers and outstanding markets and food stores in the country. Assisting these retail outlets in their efforts to move into consumption a large percentage of the remaining stock of 1933 crop prunes, the prune cooperative will supply store display material and dealer helps to be used by the stores in making counter and window displays of prunes.

Many of these sales will be supported by extensive newspaper advertising which will be run over the names of the stores putting on the sales.

Discussing the special sales efforts which are being planned by the United Prune Growers of California for the coming three months, Randall stated, "Late winter and early spring months always have been an important consuming period for prunes. With this thought in mind, we will capitalize on the national demand which exists for prunes during these months and push their sale through extra advertising and promotional effort."

"A number of special sales, similar to those being planned for the coming 90 days, have been held since Nov. 1. In every case they have been remarkably successful. Based on our experience with these test sales, we can look forward hopefully to moving a large volume

OLD SETTLERS' DAY TO BE PUBLICIZED BY CONSOLIDATED

The second speaker to be invited here for Old Settlers' day, Robert G. Sproul, University of California head, has signified his inability to be present. The speaker committee is working on several other prospects and hope to have something definite to report next week.

Perhaps the biggest boost for good attendance at the annual celebration will be received here next Tuesday noon when the County Consolidated Chambers of Commerce will meet at luncheon with the Campbell Kiwanis club. In addition to a discussion of topics interesting to the entire county, particular stress will be laid upon the desirability of having Old Settlers' day well publicized throughout the valley. Visiting civic workers will be asked to carry the good word to their respective communities.

CAMPBELL MEETS LIVE OAK HERE FRIDAY EVENING

In their tilt with Santa Clara Friday night Campbell's 130-pound team came off second best by a one-point margin—18-19. The unlimiteds, on the other hand, were victorious, piling up a score of 34 to 17. Cook, center, accounted for 21 points.

The games this Friday night will be held at Campbell, where Live Oak meets the local teams. In a recent exchange at Live Oak the boys of that school scored a win over Campbell, and so Orchard City 30's will be out for blood.

MISS FANNIE INGLES DIED HERE TODAY

Miss Ruth Townsend Will Take Part In Comedy, "Stray Cats"

The show goes on—Thursday evening, Feb. 8. Originally planned for Saturday night, Jan. 27, "Stray Cats" had to be postponed until the eighth of this month due to the illness of the leading lady, Frances Reed. About the time Miss Reed began to recover, Miss Mildred Cooke, another member of the cast, was taken seriously ill and was forced to enter a hospital.

An understudy was secured for Miss Cooke, Miss Mabel Matteson, high school student, who was obliged to give it up because of studies and participation in the high school operetta. Everything is lined up for opening as scheduled, however, as Miss Ruth Townsend has agreed to assume Miss Cooke's part.

NEW FIRM GIVES PRODUCTION AND HARVEST LOANS

Recently established, the San Jose Production Credit association is a part of the federal farm credit administration assisted by the Production Credit corporation of Berkeley and the Federal Intermediate Credit bank, according to information received this week from the organization's secretary, Lyman S. Lantz. Its purpose is to loan funds to farmers for production and harvesting expenses.

"Fruit and field crops, stock raising, dairy and poultry loans are all provided for," said Mr. Lantz.

"The plan as outlined is to be a permanent one. Loans are being made on sound business principles with the distinct thought behind them that these institutions must serve the farmers as liberally and as flexibly as is consistent with good business."

"Founded with this principle in mind it is the thought of the management of the San Jose Production Credit association that farmers should very carefully look into this plan. Those who have familiarized themselves with the details realize that this association can be made to serve a very much needed and permanent use."

"Farmers have offered to them a medium through which they can be financed for years to come with the same aid at their disposal in bad as well as in good times."

The San Jose Production Credit association serves the four counties of Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Mateo and San Francisco. Offices are located at 74 North First street in San Jose.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Under "Lessons of the Depression," California should boldly write and try to remember—"Selfishness and greed are bad public policy!"

There should be an end, for example, to the selfish and stupid practice of cities seeking to benefit at the expense of rural areas, or vice versa.

As a case in point, this depression-lesson, if it has been well learned, will act as an important safeguard in the conduct of the great Central Valley water and power project; and, also, in the utilization of power in California from the Colorado river project.

And it is especially important at this time when plans are being made to form utility districts to buy and distribute power of these vast projects.

If intelligence and consideration for the rights of others dictate the formation of these utility districts, as well as their administration, California cities will not slam the door in the face of the farming sections in organizing the districts.

Aside from the fact that farmer votes in the great valleys were a primary factor in carrying the election and making the project possible, both cities and rural areas should have learned, after four years of financial chaos, that they are completely dependent on each other for economic security. And if there are benefits to be gained from a new supply of power at cheap rates, it is just as vital to the cities that agriculture should share in the benefits as it is to the farmers themselves.

Typifying the attitude which endangers the success of the Central Valley project is a recent statement issued by Mayor Thomas P. Scollan of Sacramento, urging that the city operate its own distributing system, rather than joining a district composed of a larger area, as proposed by the State Water Plan association.

Said Mayor Scollan:

"We're in this thing to make money and I think the city can make more money by avoiding being in the same system as a rural area."

Technically, Mayor Scollan's analysis may be correct. Rural costs of distribution are undoubtedly heavier than city costs and perhaps the city of Sacramento could make more money—temporarily—by "going it alone." But no city of California is more dependent on agriculture for its income and wealth than Sacramento. And the farming area in the vicinity of Sacramento would be heavily penalized if Mayor Scollan's policy was adopted.

But beyond even these considerations, and they are of tremendous importance in the final reckoning, is the fact that the efficient and successful operation of a power project requires a "diversity in load and demand," through which each individual class of consumer helps all other classes in bearing the system's burdens and in making possible low rates.

And city and rural loads are mutually dependent and beneficial. The city use of power, for instance, reaches its peak in the winter months—and the rural load is heaviest in the summer. Similarly, city use is heaviest at night—and rural use during the day. These factors have an important bearing in achieving a balance between supply and demand, reducing overhead and rates alike.

Regardless of past differences,

TAX SURVEY FOR RELIABLE DATA

Berkeley, Jan. 31—The first authentic story of rural tax delinquencies in California will be told next month, when a survey disclosing the amount of such delinquencies and tax sales has been completed in 57 counties of the state by Dr. George M. Peterson, associate professor of agricultural economics in the University of California.

Dr. Peterson is directing the survey for the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, and is using funds allotted from the Civil Works administration for the employment of local county supervising, clerical, and statistical personnel in compiling the data, it was announced today. The project, he said, is giving employment to 194 persons for approximately one and a half months.

In each county with the exception of San Francisco county, he explains, the census is being made under the direction of a county leader, aided by one to ten clerical and statistical assistants, depending on the size of the county and the number of its farm units. A fund of $21,197 has been made available for this work by the civil works administration, and of this amount, he added, $20,360 is to be used for wages of those employed on the project.

"When the survey is completed," says Dr. Peterson, "and the data is summarized, the complete story of rural tax delinquencies in California, from 1928 to 1933, will be told for the first time in terms of facts. Heretofore, it has been possible only to guess at the figures."

"All counties are cooperating splendidly in this undertaking. Office space for the special temporary enumerators has been provided in the county court houses. Our working personnel includes 57 county project leaders and 135 clerks and statistical assistants, of whom two-thirds are women, in accordance with the regulation of the civil works administration."

In 15 counties, said Dr. Peterson, a special survey of farm real estate transactions is being included in the general enumeration. Santa Clara county is included in this number.

It is to be hoped that Mayor Scollan, on second thought, will adopt a broader and sounder policy. And it is even more to be hoped that other California cities, throughout the 500-mile area embraced by the project, will consider the rights of the back-country which has built and maintained them.

In the organization of the utility districts, wherever it is feasible, the city resident and the farmer should stand together for their mutual good and the welfare of the project.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gillis of Anoka, Minn., are visiting for two months with Mr. Gillis' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Mark E. Purmort. Mr. and Mrs. Purmort also entertained the latter's brother James R. Gillis recently. He had been in the forestry service in Manila, P. I. He was enroute to Duluth, Minn., having been transferred to the forestry service there.

Friends will be glad to know that Miss Betty York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. York, returned from the hospital Friday and is convalescing at her home.

THE STORY OF CALIFORNIA SCHOOLS

By ROY W. CLOUD
State Executive Secretary California Teachers Association

THE FOUNDATIONS LAID

In 1863, John Swett, now one of the outstanding figures in the history of American education, became superintendent of public instruction in California.

Adamantine in his fixed purpose, Swett set himself to the task of convincing the legislature of the necessity for more liberal support for the public schools.

Swett declared two principles which have since become accepted axioms in American educational theory.

The first of these was: "It is the duty of a republican or representative government, as an act of self-preservation, to provide for the education of every child."

The second principle was: "The property of the state should be taxed to pay for that education."

These two fundamentals became the guides by which Swett worked.

He addressed a petition to the legislature, signed by thousands of California citizens, urging increased state support for the schools.

The legislature of 1864 reacted to Swett's appeal by passing several important bills increasing the support of public schools. The state's contribution to education was increased; both the minimum and maximum county requirements were raised; and local districts were required to tax themselves when necessary to keep the public schools open at least five months in the year.

In his biennial report of 1865 Swett praises the previous legislature for its liberality, and reports upon the results obtained through the money it made available. At this time, however, there was an "economy" move on foot among the citizen body and among certain groups in the legislature. Swett refers to this movement as follows:

"It is a matter of deep regret to all thinking people that some of our citizens who represent the greatest wealth of the community are engaged in a crusade against taxation for education, and are waging their warfare under the hue and cry of extravagance, for the purpose of exciting the prejudices of the people.

"Public schools are synonymous with taxation; they represent taxation, and the sooner the common people understand this democratic-republican doctrine the better for the state, the better for property, the better for mankind, the better for the nation. There is altogether too much of this whining about taxation for the support of schools. Where would the nation have been today but for the public schools?"

"The public schools are the educators of the working men and women of the nation, and they are the producers of all the wealth which is protected by law. The school molds the characters of men whose will, expressed through the ballot box, makes and unmakes constitutions, and breathes life into laws.

"I appeal to legislators, when the school bill comes before them, to bear in mind that in providing schools, a liberal expenditure is in the end the truest economy."

Swett's intelligent and unremitting labors both with the legislature and in influencing public opinion received their crowning reward when he was able in 1867, in his last report as state superintendent, to set down this educationally historic fact:

"For the first time in the history of the state every public school is entirely free for every child to enter."

RICHMOND CHASE WINS INTERCITY CHAMPIONSHIP

By Hal DeFraga

Last Sunday at the local diamond Richmond-Chase took the Campbell club into camp by a 9-5 score. The canners had the best of it and deserved to win. A few of the Campbell players were capable of much better playing and these few men have probably played their last game.

The canners started it off in the second inning when they scored three runs on Thurber's error at second base. Campbell tied the score in the third when Bishop and Jung drove in three runs. Starsi homed in the fourth with two men on the bases to run up three more for the canners. Errors by Thurber and Reed were featured in this inning. Richmond-Chase tallied once in the fifth on an overthrow of first by Bishop.

In the first half of the ninth the visitors started a rally that netted them two runs. Great throwing by Mitchell put one man out at third and another at the plate. In the home team's half of the ninth Quain grounded out to shortstop, Thurber walked, Atkinson tripped, Bishop and Jung singled and Reed walked to fill the bases and score twice. Mitchell and Clark struck out.

This ends the Inter-City league. Richmond-Chase was the winner and will play a three game series with the winner of the Nelson-Valley Auto Wreckers game in the Valley league. Campbell will continue to play ball and some fast teams will be brought out. The fans can be assured of seeing a good baseball game every Sunday at the diamond, win, lose or draw. These next few games will be used to try out some new men, and when the next league opens Campbell will have another team to enter.

Dick Main will probably see action next Sunday in the infield, as will Jack Silberbauer in the out-

WILL SURVEY PRUNE MARKET IN EASTERN U. S.

Edwin W. Stillwell, general manager of the United Prune growers of California, will spend the coming five weeks in making a thorough survey of eastern market and business conditions as they are affecting prune sales.

Stillwell left San Francisco late last week for Chicago where he will attend the annual conventions during the present week of the National American Wholesale Grocers association, the National Food Brokers association and the National Canners association, who will hold joint conventions Jan. 15-20.

As part of its educational campaign to interest all channels of food distribution in pushing the sale of prunes, the United Prune growers of California has installed a complete display of its 1933-34 advertising campaign at the Chicago conventions.

Plans for the 1934-35 merchandising and advertising program of the state-wide growers' cooperative will be based in part upon the study of the results of this year's promotional efforts and of an analysis of the present trend of general market conditions which will be made by Stillwell.

Before leaving on his eastern trip, Stillwell announced, "A decidedly more favorable trade attitude toward prunes was in evidence in practically all parts of the country after Nov. 1. We have every reason to believe the prune sales in the entire range of sizes will show a material increase during the next few months.

"Not only do field reports show this renewed interest in prunes but there is also a very promising interest being displayed on the part of bakers in the possibilities of prune bread. This latter commodity, made for the most part with prunes which are unsuitable for general packing purposes, may develop into an important outlet for this type of fruit."

field.

Next Sunday Bill White who has managed the Villa Boma team in the Valley league will bring his N. R. A. team to the local diamond and a very good game will be assured the fans, of whom there were a great many out to last Sunday's game.

Johnson has been removed from instigation of the local chamber of commerce. Inasmuch as that felt they could not assume liability in case the sign should fall and hurt somebody, its removal was very smart indeed.

There exists at this point, however, need for some kind of sign which will inform the traveler that he is approaching Campbell, and it seems to me that the automobile association could be successfully approached on the matter. Preferably by a member of the association. Other towns and villages have these neat, sturdy "eye-level" signs

Fred Jones says:

"If you want your money to go 30% farther, here's my advice—

"Break in new tires at this time because cool roads toughen rubber—cold-cure it. Thus tires put on now will run about 30% farther than the same tires started off new on hot summer roads. That means you get 30% more mileage plus immediate non-skid safety. At today's low prices, isn't that worth thinking about?"

6655 MOUNTAIN LIONS KILLED IN STATES SINCE 1907

San Francisco, Jan. 31—Mountain lions seem to be getting scarcer in California. During 1933 the kill of these animals, the most devastating enemy of deer, as well as cattle and other domestic stock, fell off considerably. The bounties paid by the state fish and game commission on lions for the year was 269 as against 325 for 1932.

During the past four years 54 per cent of the scalps turned in were of female lions, and this is attributed as one of the most important factors in the decrease of these beasts.

It is estimated by the chief of the bureau of game refuges that 269 lions would account for the loss of nearly 15,000 deer a year. The toll for cattle, sheep and other domestic animals would also reach a high figure.

Since bounties on mountain lions were first paid in 1907 there have been 6,655 of these predators taken out of circulation by state lion hunters and others who sought to make a little side money by collecting the bounty of $20 for a male and $30 for a female lion.

Santa Barbara led other counties in the lions killed during December with five. Monterey and Tulare accounted for four each; Kern and Trinity for two apiece, while Shasta and Humboldt had one each—a total of 19, of which 12 were females.
